FRIDAY, AUGUST 5, 1887.

The spectacle of the Brooklyn Citizen reading the New York Herald is suggestive of the little dog barking at the moon. It pleases the dog, but does not effect the moon.

Among the items of an account rendered by one of President Cleveland's appointees was "one pair of best driving gloves $3.00." Reform that supplies the personal wearing apparel for Government employees is something entirely new to the tax payers in this country.

The New York Republican State Committee had a harmonious meeting at Saratoga, and decided to call a State convention to meet at Saratoga Sept. 14. The members of the committee expressed themselves as confident of a Republican victory at the November election.

A Kentuckian now in Washington says if he were going to paint a picture of Cleveland, he should depict him as a "Gilded Age" man.

This only confirms the opinion that Democratic politicians in Kentucky have very queer ideas on all religious subjects.

Ex-Speaker Carlisle will now be more than ever convinced that the labor party is necessary. It has carried the two principal towns in the ex-Speaker's district in Kentucky, including his home, by 500 and 250 plurality respectively. What uses has the ex-Speaker for such a party?

The Fall River News says: Mr. Blaine has come to be regarded by the mass of Republicans as the leader under whose guidance alone the party can be organized in power, and unless some unlooked for event within the year checks the tide of popular opinion, the Republican National Convention in 1888 will place Mr. Blaine in nomination for the Presidency.

Governor Gordon, of Georgia, in a recent speech to ex-Confederate veterans, struck an impressive attitude and said: "Whenever I admit that we were in the wrong, may God blast me where I stand." So far as heard from none of the Democratic or Mugwump papers, which have been pouring out riddles upon General Fairchild, has mentioned this impression of Governor Gordon.

The Boston Post finds in the meeting of the National Civil Service Reform League a "qualified endorsement" of the President. Possibly from the standpoint of a Democratic-Mugwump organ, but when Mr. Curtis declared that "it would be a great wrong to the cause of which the league is the authorized national representative if it did not pluckily and emphatically declare that in any strict sense of the words a civil service reform administration," it is a little difficult to see where this endorsement qualified for otherwise comes in.

It appears that of the election officers chosen by Higgins and his gang at the late Baltimore primaries 38 were men who had been presented or indicted for crime; that more than 200 of them were registered under names different from those assigned to them in the directory advertised by the supervisors; that 20 of them were discredited by law; that 15 of them had been dismissed from various city offices for bad conduct; that 17 of them were not registered voters; and that 33 who were appointed as Republicans were notoriously Democrats of bad repute.

The Boston Herald says that whenever a Democratic editor expresses dissatisfaction with the Administration, the Republican papers use his name for all it is worth, and then insist there is nothing of the reformer in Mr. Cleveland. If they do they simply state the truth, the proof of which our Mugwump contemporaries will find in the address of Mr. George William Curtis who admits just what the Republicans have claimed all the time. By the way the Herald, editorially, was significantly dumb concerning the meeting of the National Reform League. The editor of the Herald will add much instructive reading in the address of President Curtis as well as the resolutions that were unanimously adopted at that meeting.

The New York Post cites the New York post office as one of the offices "rescued from the spoils system and run upon the business system" through the efforts of the Cleveland administration. The system upon which the New York post office is conducted, says the Philadelphia Press, was introduced by Thomas F. James, who was appointed by a Republican President when Grover Cleveland was first in office. He has now of rising to the moon in a railroad car. When Mr. James was Postmaster General by President Garfield his son-in-law and assistant, Mr. Pearson, was appointed, and he still occupies the office. Mr. Pearson received his training and impulse towards reform under a Republican administration, and the attempt to ascribe the praise to Mr. Cleveland is only one more of the dishonest Mugwump attempts to blotter him up. If the New York Post really wants to know the way in which the Cleveland administration rescues the post office from the spoils system and runs them on business principles let it come to Philadelphia. But the trouble is it doesn't want to know the truth.

While there appears to be considerable uncertainty as to the result of the Kentucky election, there is no doubt that the Republicans have made very large gains throughout the State. That the tremendous Democratic majority in that State should be cut down so that the result of the election is still undecided is a matter of great surprise, but when the Republicans on a basis of gains already reported figure out a victory for their State ticket it is simply astounding. Final returns may show the election of the Democratic candidate, especially as they have everything in their own hands, but it will be a comparatively narrow margin. At the last gubernatorial election Kentucky, the Democratic candidate, had a majority of 44,484. When the "Kentucky" begins to go back on its Democratic record in this manner on the eve of a Presidential election it indicates a shaky condition of affairs for that party in 1888 in the South. The Republicans should maintain a careful watch of the returns as past experience has taught them that the Democrats never hesitate to change results by a manipulation of figures when such a course is necessary to party success.

The Providence Journal in commenting upon utterances of Senator Sherman takes occasion to air its hostility to Mr. Blaine by trying to hold him in error as the Ohio statesman. As Mr. Blaine is now out of the country and is paying no attention to politics this kind of the Journal is a gratuitous piece of impudence. A paper that has just been engaged in betraying its party in Rhode Island is not entitled to a position to advise Republicans as to their duty in national politics. It may run its rig in Rhode Island, where the people have become so accustomed to look to the Journal in the past that they are slow to realize the tremendous fall that has taken place in the hands of Senator Anthony, but when it comes to trespass itself over the remaining States in the Union it will not encounter the same tolerant spirit. Republicans at large do not draw their inspiration from such unreliable sources.

The Cleveland organs that have suddenly re-emerged from the shock of Mr. George William Curtis' confession of the absolute failure of President Cleveland's administration from a reform standpoint to refer to the matter at all, do so in a most unbecoming manner. They quote certain passages in which the speaker sought to soften the blow he was about to deliver, but nowhere do they find space for his conclusion that viewed even in the most favorable light it cannot be claimed as a "civil service reform administration."

For two years now these organs have sought to denigrate the result of the election of Mr. Cleveland. It is now their duty to praise it, and it is as much their duty to praise it as it is to denigrate it. The whole framework of this sham reform boom ruthlessly shattered by the President of the National Reform League. Hereafter any criticism of the Administration has been charged to the wicked party Republicans, but how that George William Curtis himself is said to, these apologists may well go out of the business.

The Sherman endorsement. The following is the double ended article to which reference has been made that appeared in the Toledo Blade on the morning of the Ohio Republican convention.

It is time to call a halt, on this foolishness. Machine politics have no place in the Republican party in Ohio. One thing at a time and that will do is safe rule in either business or politics. The Republicans of Ohio have to perform this year in to elect their Governor and a majority of the next Central Assembly.

Next year comes the "great local fight." To inject that campaign into this year's contest is to weaken the Republican party, impair its now excellent organization for success, and to give the Democrats a chance for a solid delegation to the National Convention.

Mr. Sherman is a man of whom Ohio is proud; he has no other distinction upon her and upon his party by his long and splendid public career. It is fair that he should have the support of Ohio in the National Republican Convention next year; but the method of securing it is unwise. It is a matter that should be left for 1888. In this whole matter, Mr. Sherman has not had advice. His managers are making the fatal error to try to force a unanimous endorsement from the Republicans of Ohio, when the opinion in his own State is not prepared for such a move.

Mr. Sherman has been in public life at Washington since before the war. His duties have often kept him out of the State during important campaigns, and in the quiet of a century that has elapsed there has grown up a generation of Republican voters who do not know him save by reputation. He has not the aid of personal friendship and sympathy. While they concede to him the highest place among the Republicans of Ohio, they do not place him above all other Republican statesmen in the Nation. Possibly they do not love Sherman less, but they certainly love others more in National politics.

With the Republicans of the State divided in opinion as to the Presidential nomination, the efforts of the Senator's managers to enforce a vote of endorsement in the Cleveland campaign, and the efforts of the Cleveland campaign to enforce a vote of endorsement in the Cleveland campaign, the Cleveland campaign to enforce a vote of endorsement in the Cleveland campaign.

The managers will take every precaution for the safe keeping of animals or articles on exhibition, after arrival, and arrangement for exhibition; but the Society will not be responsible for damage that may occur to animals or articles on exhibition. Exhibitors must give personal attention to their animals or articles, and at the close of the Fair attend to their removal.

Exhibitors must see to the delivery of their contributions at the Fair Grounds; the Society cannot in any case make provision for their transportation, or be subjected to any expense, therefore, either in the delivery, at, or return from, the exhibition; but all the expenses connected therewith must be provided for by the exhibitors.

The Fair will be on so extensive a scale that it will be of the greatest importance to exhibitors that they give early notice to the Secretary, by correspondence, of intention to exhibit, stating amount of space, pens or stalls required, that ample provision may be made for their accommodation.

For the convenience of exhibitors covered stalls will be provided for the stock and litter for bedding; with water, will be supplied without charge, so that animals, on their arrival at the Fair Grounds, need not be removed until the exhibition is closed. Exhibitors will be required to furnish their own grain, which will be for sale on the grounds at market rates.

Regard will be paid to purity of blood, as established by pedigree, symmetry, size, and general characteristics, of the several breeds of animals; and the Judges will make proper allowances for age, feeding and other circumstances. They are expressly required not to give encouragement to overfed animals in the breeding classes.

There is no competition, or but one competitor in a class, the Judges may award the first premium, if meritorious, and thirty-three per cent. of the premium will be retained by the Society. The Judges will mention in awarding the premiums that there was no competition.

No person who is an exhibitor can act as a judge on the class in which he exhibits. And during the examination by the Judges if any person interferes with them, by letter or otherwise, he will be excluded from the competition. But exhibitors, when requested, are expected to make verbal or written statements concerning their contributions.

When the Judges have made their decisions, they will personally see that the premium cards are attached to the pens of sheep, swine, and other animals, and premium ribbons on cattle and horses. First premium, a blue ribbon; second premium, a red ribbon; third premium, a white ribbon. Premium ribbons or cards not awarded must be returned with the book of entry to which they belong.

At 2 o'clock P. M. on Tuesday, the books will be delivered to the Judges at the President's office.

The exhibition of stock in the cattle rings and on the track will take place precisely at the time specified; and animals not prepared at the proper time and place may, at the discretion of the Judges, be ruled out of competition. Stock, etc., will be marked with cards furnished by the Secretary, designating the division and number of entry, and during the exhibition they must be placed entirely under the management of the officers of the Society.

Authentic pedigrees of blood stock of all kinds will be required, which must be filed with the Secretary at the time of entry. No animal will be allowed a premium unless so authenticated.

No animal shall be excluded from competition for the first premium in any class by reason of having won the same premium at previous fairs.

Entries will be made in strict compliance with the official premium list, and awards made in accordance. Parties must, therefore, take particular pains to have stock and articles entered properly.

PREMIUMS.

Blue ribbon or card denotes first premium; red ribbon or card denotes second premium; white ribbon or card denotes third premium.

Premiums will not be paid on animals or articles removed from the exhibition before the close, unless such removal has the special approval of one of the executive officers of the Society.

Cash premiums will be paid by the Treasurer, on and after October 10, 1887, at his office in Bangor, Me., and he will forward any premium not so paid, to any point, in such manner as the person entitled to the same may indicate in writing, the following provision having been adopted:

"That all premiums awarded, except the Society's medals, may be liable to prompt reduction sufficient to meet any deficiency that may occur in the receipts, to meet said premiums as soon as they are secured from the manufacturer."

A postal and package office will be kept on duty during the Fair at the President's office. Correspondence intended for exhibitors or visitors, that is addressed care of the Eastern Maine State Fair, Bangor, Me., will be forwarded promptly to said postal office at the grounds.

GUESTS.

Ample provision will be made for the accommodation of reporters for the press. A press headquarters has been provided at the grounds.

RAILROADS.

Persons who intend to exhibit, if they will notify the Secretary by which railroad they desire to send their exhibits, he will inform them of the amount of reduction that has been agreed upon.

Special premiums will be offered and the same will be announced in the papers from time to time.

Necessary attendants to Exhibitors of Stock will be admitted free only at the Stock entrance on Buck street.

No premium will be awarded to an animal unworthy, even though there be no competition.

No spirituous liquors will be allowed to be sold on the premises.

The exhibitor or attendant must at all times be in attendance of stock for the purpose of giving information to the judges and visitors.
